

1. Whole-of-Market Evaluation

We begin by evaluating the entire Lloyd's market.

Our first screen involves analysing the historical underwriting performance of every Lloyd's syndicate across multiple market cycles.

This ensures we identify syndicates with a long-term track record of underwriting profitability, particularly those that have performed well during soft or stressed market environments.

This step serves as a quantitative triage, allowing us to focus only on syndicates with proven underwriting capability.

2. Syndicate Evaluation

Quantitative review

Each syndicate undergoes a comprehensive evaluation, encompassing business plan review, historical and projected performance analysis, and assessment of its impact on the overall portfolio.

Our analytical toolkit, including stochastic modelling and scenario analysis, enables us to make informed, risk-adjusted decisions within the context of evolving market dynamics.

Qualitative review

In addition to quantitative evaluation, we conduct in-depth qualitative assessments.

We evaluate underwriting leadership, strategic direction and corporate governance standards.

Qualitative insight is used to refine and validate the selections identified through our data-driven triage.

4. Portfolio optimisation

We optimise our portfolio by selecting high quality Lloyd's syndicates with strong track records, with an objective to build a balanced, diversified portfolio that enhances return on capital while maintaining disciplined exposure to risks. As part of our portfolio construction, we apply an allocation framework that sets maximum capacity limits by the age of each syndicate, avoiding overexposure to any syndicate.

Our portfolio is designed to broadly mirror Lloyd's class of business mix, ensuring diversification and mitigating systemic or class-specific risk.

However, we selectively overweight outperforming segments and underweight areas facing challenges, creating a smart, risk-aware tilt that enhances performance potential.

We are developing an efficient frontier model, a data-driven framework to model the trade-off between risk and return across our syndicates. This approach allows us to construct a portfolio that maximises expected return for Helios' defined risk appetite and tolerance, forming our strategic allocation baseline.

5. Continuous monitoring and cycle management

Selected syndicates are subject to ongoing oversight.

We conduct:

- quarterly underwriting and claims reviews against business plans; and
- regular engagement with managing agents and active underwriters.

Resilience through the cycle is fundamental to our strategy.

“

At the heart of Helios' portfolio optimisation is a whole-of-market approach grounded in deep research and analysis, qualitative judgement, and robust cycle management.”

Syndicate scoring

Each syndicate is assessed through a comprehensive, multi-factor scoring framework that includes:

- historical profitability;
- capital efficiency;
- volatility and peak peril exposure;
- portfolio diversification benefits;
- quality and stability of underwriting leadership;
- operational efficiency; and
- future outlook.

Syndicates are graded, and only those in the top quartiles are considered for inclusion.

This system provides an objective basis for ranking performance and guides our capital allocation decisions.

3. Strategic partnerships

We actively seek to partner with high-performing syndicates, including those that typically do not offer capacity to third party capital providers.

Our goal is to secure exclusive access for Helios and to position ourselves as a long-term, value-adding partner of choice.

By aligning ourselves with leading underwriting talent, we enhance our ability to deliver superior returns sustainably.

We favour syndicates that demonstrate:

- tactical pre-emptions in hardening market conditions; and
- strong rate adequacy discipline in challenging market conditions.

We monitor rate momentum and pricing adequacy at the risk code level to ensure our portfolio remains dynamically aligned with evolving market conditions.

6. Risk management

Risk management is integral to how we select, build and monitor our Lloyd's portfolio.

Our risk management framework encompasses:

- diversification across classes of business, geographies and perils;
- stress and scenario testing of portfolio resilience to adverse events;
- ongoing capital adequacy review relative to projected exposures; and
- monitoring of syndicate-specific developments and Lloyd's market-wide trends.

Our focus is on ensuring that our portfolio remains resilient through market volatility while concentrating capital in the most compelling underwriting opportunities.
